

Wait and See story by Robert Munsch

art by Michael Martchenko

Annick Press
Toronto • New York • Vancouver

On the day of Olivia's birthday, her mother made a big cake and said, "Make a wish and blow them out."

Olivia really liked snow, and even though it was a warm summer day, she decided to wish for snow. She wanted it to be really deep, so she wished for SNOW, SNOW, and more SNOW.

Then she took a deep breath:

Ahhhhhhhh,

and blew out the candles:

Whhhhhhhhhhhw.

Her father said, “Well, Olivia, what did you wish for?”

Olivia said, “I wished for SNOW, SNOW, and more SNOW.”

“Now, look next door,” said her father, “you can’t wish for snow. It’s summertime! It doesn’t snow in summertime. This is not going to work.”

Olivia said, “Wait and see.”

When the party was over and the kids were ready to go home, they opened the front door. There was snow at the bottom of the door, snow at the middle of the door, and snow at the top of the door. The whole house was covered with snow.

Olivia ran into the kitchen and yelled, “Mommy–Daddy, Mommy–Daddy, Mommy–Daddy; SNOW, SNOW and more SNOW.”

The mother and father said, “Snow in the summertime? This kid is going totally nuts!” Then they opened the front door and yelled, “AHHHHHHHHHHHH!”

“Olivia, you have to get rid of this. This is entirely too much snow.”

“Make me another birthday cake,” said Olivia.

So they made Olivia another birthday cake and Olivia made a wish.

Then she took a deep breath:

Ahhhhhhhh,

and blew out the candles:

Whhhhhhhhhhhhw.

Right away it started to rain. It rained and it rained and it washed all the snow away. “Good wish,” said her father. “You wished for rain.”

It rained some more and the front yard filled up with water.

“How much rain did she wish for?” asked her mother.

“Olivia,” said her father, “did you wish one word?”

“No,” said Olivia.

“Olivia,” said her father, “did you wish two words?”

“No,” said Olivia.

“Olivia,” said her father, “did you wish three words?”

“Yes,” said Olivia, “I wished for RAIN, RAIN, and more RAIN.”

